Pastoral Letter July 2021

Discipleship

“Discipleship... is a state of being. Discipleship is about how we live; not just the decisions we make, not just the things we believe, but a state of being.” (Rowan Williams)

When I first became a Christian in the early 1980s I found myself in possession of a book that had me gripped from cover to cover. Simply titled “Discipleship”, and authored by David Watson, it was a book that spoke to me clearly about the sort of life that I felt I ought to be living, that I should be considering, as someone who had been brought up in the church but who had only recently begun to work out what it was all about, and come into a relationship with Jesus Christ.

When Watson begins with a quote from Dietrich Bonhoeffer, “When Christ calls a man, he bids him come and die” you know that you’re not in for an easy read... but the challenge is there for each and every one of us as to how we are to respond to the call of God on our lives.

To a relatively young person, one might say that I suddenly saw the attraction of the “radical, uncompromising nature of true Christian discipleship”, something that I think I’d missed hearing about somehow in church life up to that point in time (was it preached, or did I simply not “hear” properly?).

In Discipleship, David Watson speaks of the call to discipleship, God’s family, creating community, making disciples, life in the Spirit, prayer, the word of God, spiritual warfare, evangelism, discipleship and simple lifestyle, the cost of discipleship and abounding in hope (now there’s some ideas for a series of sermons!).

So now, many years later, how do I respond to that book and Watson's thoughts - is the call to discipleship still valid?

Was there something present in what I read that I now look back on and considered ill-advised, that I might want to change my mind about or an issue I might want to approach in a different way?

Little, if anything, would be the answer I would want to give.

The fact that the book is still sitting on my bookshelf in several different pieces, witnesses to the fact that I still read bits of it from time to time and refresh my memory about discipleship and what following Christ is really all about, or should be about.

I think that the only thing that I would want to say more about than what David Watson explores is the need to listen to others.

It is not that Watson doesn't cover that - he does, but it is that the way I have developed in my Christian understanding and actions is that I hope and think that I need to listen to others more so that I can understand where they are at, rather than assume that I know all the answers and can solve everyone's problems (none of us can!).

This hopefully leads me to try and ensure that I am putting all my trust in God, relying on the Holy Spirit to guide me at all times, and making sure that I consult with God about any decisions that need to be taken.

Others have written about what it means to be a disciple of Christ over the years since Watson penned "Discipleship" - see for example the quote from Rowan Williams' book "Being Disciples" above - but the words which first stirred me in my late teens still encourage me in my response to God today in 2021.

Is there another book that had the same effect on you? Why not share your thoughts about it in a future edition of the church magazine, or write about it so that we can put something on our website or social media pages?

As we journey forward as Christians we all need to be continually encouraged and strengthened in our faith, and this can often happen best when we hear what has helped others to have their faith strengthened. So let's share the good things we've heard, read, watched and witnessed with others.

As the writer to the Hebrews puts it:

"let us consider how to provoke one another to love and good deeds, not neglecting to meet together... but encouraging one another, and all the more as you see the Day approaching."
(Hebrews 10:24-25)

May you find and discover new ways of sharing your love of God with others in the days ahead.

With every blessing,

Your minister, Mark

From Zion Chapel to Christ Church

The following is the fifth of a series of articles written by Stephen Gilbert entitled "From Zion Chapel to Christ Church - A Story of Congregationalists in Enfield".

Part 5: The Later Ministry of Revd Henry Storer Toms between 1874 and 1905

Building of Christ Church 1874-75

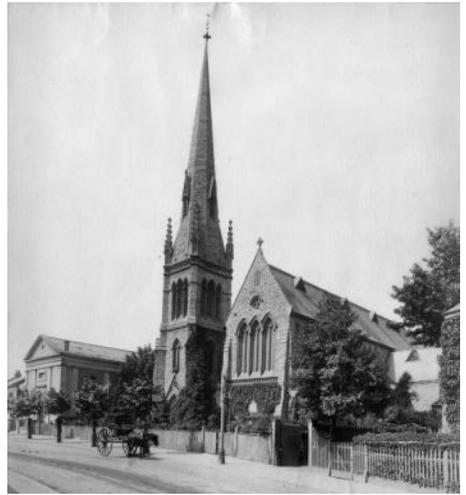

The foundation stone of the Grade II listed Christ Church was laid by the Lord Mayor of London, Andrew Lusk, on 29th June 1874. The church was built in the Decorated Gothic style and faced with Kentish ragstone with Bath stone dressings around the doors and windows outside and faced with Bath stone inside with a brick core. The orientation is the reverse to that found in Catholic and Anglican churches with the chancel/apse being at the west end and the nave at the east end.

The church was built by Messrs Cooke and Green at a cost of nearly £11,000. The architect John Tarring was a well-known designer of Nonconformist churches. When the church was under construction he asked the children in the congregation to go into the surrounding fields and collect leaves, flowers and fruit. He then incorporated these into his designs for the capitals at the top of the columns. Each capital is different. In the spandrels of the transept bays were carved panels representing the evangelists.

The church was completed when Storer Toms climbed the scaffolding to place the weather vane in position on the top of the 180 feet high spire.

The church was dedicated on Thursday 18th November 1875. The dedication prayer was offered by Revd H. Simon and the sermon was preached by Dr A. Raleigh from the words "for Jesus oftentimes resorted thither". The morning service was followed by lunch with twelve principal speakers in the British School rooms and tea in the former Chase Side Chapel. The sermon at the evening service was preached by Dr Henry Allan. Collections totalled £1,144. The total cost of the church was paid off by 1884.

On the west wall of the chancel is a carved stone relief of the Last Supper of Jesus with his disciples in Jerusalem, which is a copy of Leonardo da Vinci's painting in Milan. It was given by the builders Cooke and Green.

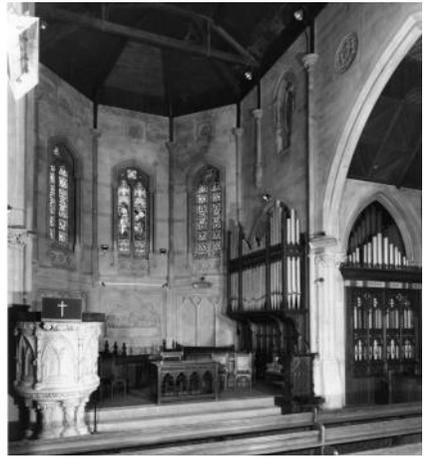

The pulpit, designed by F. G. Anstey, was constructed of Caen stone with five circular bays with alabaster shafts. The pulpit, communion table and chair, oak organ screen and four transept windows with floral designs were given to the church by the minister's father Joseph Toms. The reading desk was given by Dr John James Ridge, a deacon at Christ Church for 33 years.

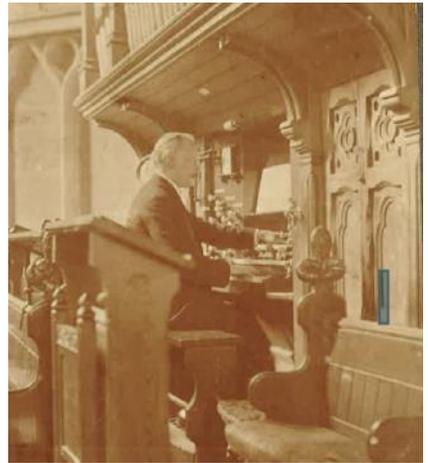

The clock was the gift of Mr George W. Gowland, the Bible and Hymn Book were given by Mr Joseph Whitaker, the candle brackets by Mrs Pope and the worked cushions by Mrs Marshall. The Young Ladies' Society gave the four coronae in the transept, the furniture in the Ministers Vestry, the pulpit, the gas standard, the coronae in the apse and the umbrella stands (Mackenzie MacBride 1902).

A three manual organ with pneumatic action was installed. There were Great and Small organs with a Choir organ at the back of the nave. "The musical parts of the services have always been noted in the neighbourhood for their excellence." (Mackenzie MacBride 1902)

Stained Glass Windows 1890s

Most of the church windows date from around 1890 and were given in memory of various church members. Above the Last Supper relief on the chancel wall are windows showing Jesus Christ as the Good Shepherd holding a sheep and as Saviour of the World carrying the cross. In the south aisle is an 1892 window by Ward and Hughes, a London firm of stained glass makers who also produced windows for Jesus Church, Forty Hill. From the left are Faith (or Belief) holding a cross, Charity (or Love) looking after children and Hope holding up her arms to Heaven.

In the north aisle are windows showing Philip, Stephen (the first Christian martyr) and Parmenas, who were three of the seven first century deacons who were appointed by the Apostles to look after the material needs of the early Christians.

On the east wall of the nave are windows showing the four gospel writers, Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. Each is holding a pen, scroll or book to indicate that he wrote one of the gospels. Between them are Peter, holding the key to the Kingdom of Heaven and Paul with a sword, the emblem of his martyrdom.

(For more information see "Guide to Christ Church Enfield")

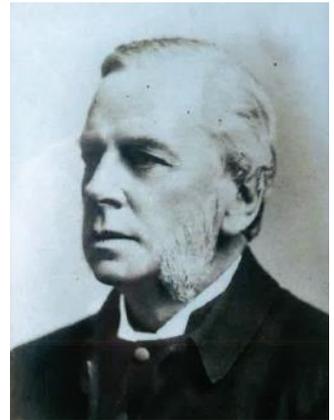

Church Parlour 1885

When the debt on the building of the church had been paid off, a Church Parlour, which was used for social and business meetings, a Ladies Vestry, a larger Deacons Vestry, toilets and a kitchen were constructed in 1885. (The Church Parlour and Ladies Vestry were demolished in 1995 to provide access to a care home, now a medical day centre, built at the same time behind the church on the site of the former manse.)

Manse 1887

From 1865 Revd Storer Toms and his family lived at Poplars, 87 Chase Side. In 1887 a manse was built behind the church after £1,000 of the Endowment was sold out and the Chapel House (the former home of the ministers of Zion Chapel since 1816) was sold to its occupants for £600. The 1891 census records the following residents of the manse - Storer Toms aged 51, his wife Caroline 50, children Florence 23, Henry 21, Norris 19, Christina 17, Edgar 15, Maud 13, Constance 11, Elsie 9 and servants Hannah 22, the cook, and Nellie 16, the housemaid. (Some ministers might wish they could have servants today!)

25 years of ministry

In 1890, to mark the 25th anniversary of his ministry and also his silver wedding, a presentation of an illuminated address and a purse containing 450 guineas was made to Mr and Mrs Toms.

The Boys' Brigade

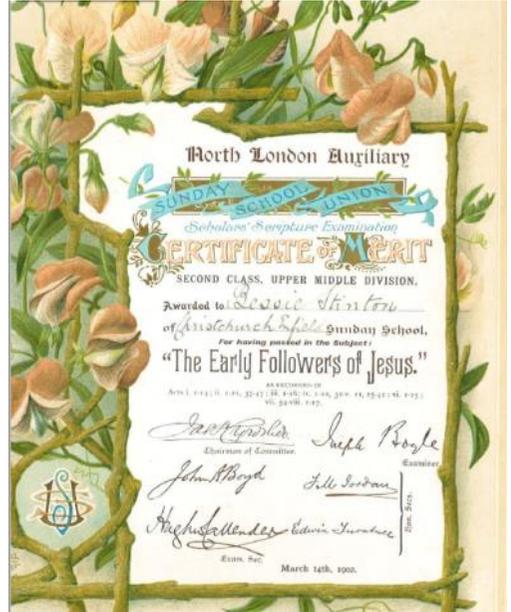

In 1890 Norris Storer Toms founded the 3rd Enfield Company of The Boys' Brigade and was briefly its Captain. Its purpose is "The advancement of Christ's Kingdom among boys". In the early days officers and boys in uniform were sometimes pelted with bottles and other missiles as they went to drill nights. The Boys' Brigade was also criticised by some church members who believed that the boys were being trained to fight for their country rather than become soldiers for Christ. (For more information see the history of the 3rd Enfield Boys' Brigade by Robert Wilson at www.3rdenfieldbb.co.uk)

Christ Church in 1900

By 1900 there were about 450 members of the congregation, plus over 700 children in the Sunday School which had been established in 1834. For many years, through to the later 20th century, Sunday School children took part in an annual Scripture Examination organised by the Sunday School Union. Those who passed were awarded an elaborately decorated Certificate and later some received prizes.

Among the various societies and organisations associated with Christ Church there were several dedicated to abstinence from alcohol for children and young people, men and women - Band of Hope, Total Abstinence Society and Abstinence Guild. There was also a Young Ladies' Society, a Men's Institute and "a Young Men's Guild which has a Guildhall open all the week, in which some 200 young men find amusement and instruction" (Mackenzie MacBride 1902). The Christ Church Provident Society, founded by Miss Florence Toms, had an annual income of over £800.

The church had a monthly magazine and published a manual each year with "a full account and balance sheets of all its organisations and Funds" (Mackenzie MacBride 1902).

Retirement

In 1905 Revd Henry Storer Toms retired after a ministry of 40 years at Chase Side Chapel and Christ Church. He moved to Barnet, where he died in 1916.

Enfield Street Pastors

Enfield Street Pastors began in 2006, and we are part of a network, first pioneered by Revd Les Isaac in 2003, CEO of Ascension Trust, our parent body. Since 2003, Street Pastors have been established in over 280 towns and cities around the country, including most London Boroughs. Street Pastors are also expanding overseas.

A Street Pastor is over 18, a committed Christian and member of a local church who, as a volunteer, and after training, has chosen to respond positively to the night time problems of a town centre.

Our brief is to listen to people who want to chat, care for those who feel vulnerable, and help those who need it in the context of the moment.

We are there to meet people where they are and respond to their current need. We are non-judgemental and have no view that would create a barrier when responding to them, be it views on religion, politics, morality or ethics.

Street Pastors are welcomed by the authorities and the people we meet because they know we are not there to evangelise or preach to them. However, because the Street Pastor uniform identifies us as Christians, people often come to us and ask us about the Christian faith, giving us the opportunity to share our faith with people and, if people are happy about this, pray with them.

In Enfield we have four teams and our patrol hours range between the hours of 9:00pm and 3:30am. Currently, we are patrolling the Fore Street corridor in Edmonton; Enfield Town Centre; and Chase Side, Southgate. These are all places where people gather at the weekend to socialise and enjoy an evening out. Sometimes, however, that evening out can take a turn through too much alcohol or through other circumstances, and people can need a helping hand. That's where Street Pastors can play their part.

We engage with people in a friendly way. It could be with passers-by; with door staff; those serving in late night convenience stores or takeaways; with groups of girls or guys, particularly if there seem to be tensions in the group; and with people outside for a smoke who just want someone different to talk to.

The vulnerable could be someone who has had too much to drink; a homeless person who needs a meal or direction to homeless services; a lone female at a bus stop late at night who could just do with someone nearby so she feels safe; or helping people get home late at night. We can be a reassuring presence for people who might feel nervous or anxious.

Street Pastors are a calming influence on the streets. We have been to communities in shock after a fatal stabbing, and brought reassurance to the people we meet. We have seen the power of prayer in helping deal with Anti-Social Behaviour. We have advised young teenagers to go home to their parents.

Street Pastors is an incredible opportunity to take the Christian faith on to the streets to a community that welcomes our presence and is happy to engage with us. Our presence is also welcomed by the Police and Local Authorities who recognise the positive contribution Street Pastors are making to the night time scene in our town centres.

Can you help?

Church requires carpenter to help feed the poor!

Not a joke - Ponders End URC is part of Enfield Food Alliance, which is working to provide emergency food to some of those most in need through the pandemic. But we need some help to build an external cupboard for some food storage. We have a design and we have a budget to cover materials, but it wouldn't cover labour unless the carpenter could work at super-human speed! This would be a great project for a retired handyperson, apprentice piece, or to give some meaning to furlough...
